

Conservative Football Will Very Likely Rule This Year--Great Season for Kicking Game Is Presaged

TACKLE TROUBLE HINDERS HARVARD FOOTBALL MACHINE

Contest With Colby Accentuated Difficulty Crimson Is to Encounter This Year.

ORTHODOX GAME IS LIKELY TO DOMINATE

By DANIEL.

Football results in September may have very little bearing on those of November, but a score such as "Harvard 11, Colby 0" commands some attention at any time. The developments of the game at Cambridge last Saturday may be taken as a fair index to conditions at Harvard and the difficulty the Crimson is going to experience in its quest of an eleven that will even approach within reasonal distance of the Haughton standard.

George Brown, commander of the Harvard strategic forces, is prompted to confess that the Crimson now stands last among the Big Three. While such admissions are all the so at this time of the year Brown without doubt means every word he says. He has been had an uncertainty about the status of Harvard football that "2 to 6" would not suffice.

The Jumbos are up against it for line men, and according to our way of thinking will be mighty lucky to come through with third position among Eastern teams. The big gaps are at the tackle and the right guard.

In addition, and away at quarter end, Brown, Clegg, Horner, Bond, and Wilcox behind them, Harvard has a team that looks like a formidable set of individuals in the backfield. But they will have to play considerable football to discount the weakness along the line. Only Judson and Harts remain from the Harvard line-ups of 1915. Various substitutions and new men Mose Taylor, Tamm, and Charley Condie, who has not yet returned from Chicago, stand over the line. The ends will very likely be well taken care of, but the tackles, who usually took the brunt of the rushing attack, bid fair to give Leo Lewis and Haughton all sorts of trouble.

Smashing Back Needed.

Harvard should be able to develop a fast rate offence, but as for that backbone of the Haughton system—Defense with a capital D—there's the rub. While the backs are as yet inclined to ignore team work, they should round out an effective combination. Yet even there we may find trouble in the form of a real smashing back of the West, or, even the Bradlee, type costly. Forward passes, nearest to that type, but Casey, Bond, Flanagan, and Wilcox are all of the running class.

Reports from Yale indicate that the old trouble at quarter is giving Ted Jones some wrestling practice, but if Ted cannot get first class general from the available candidates—Robinson, Farnham, or Ostendorf; Van Nostrand, and the second choice, Frank Kramer brought forth thunderous applause when he took two out of three heats from Hob Spears in a one mile match race. It is only the second time this season that Kramer has scored over Spears in a match affair, the other was with his return to the track after six weeks absence on account of an injury.

The Knights of Columbus, of which McNamara is a member, were out 500 strong, and the Star of Bethlehem Cougars (15) were out 500.
